HISTORIC MANOR

This residence originally named "Schoonder Sigt" ("Clear View") is deeply steeped in the history of South Africa. In the 1770's it was one of the ten most conspicuous large manors of Cape Town. It was owned and occupied by the Commandant of the Cape Castle & Dutch forces, General Robert J. Gordon, who discovered and mapped a good part of South Africa. He discovered and also named our great river, the Orange (after the Prince of Orange), Plettenberg Bay (after Governor Von Plettenberg). Gordon's Bay was named after him.

In 1800 the manor was purchased by George Rex, an Englishman who is believed to be the son of King George III. When the Dutch forces re occupied South Africa he was generously granted land at Knysna, which town he founded.
